PASSAGE OF THE INIL. ANGLISHING SLAVERY. [From the Wheeling Insuligencer, Feb. 2.]

Almost coincident with the passage through Congress of the amandment to the Constitution abolishing slavery our House of Delegates yesterday passed a bill supplementary, we may say, to our constitution, forever abolishing every vestige of silvery in this State. We say supplementary, although the bill is independent of the constitutional provision contained in action 7 of article 11, and in no wise conflicts with it in our judgment and, in the judgment of the majority of the Houle, and consequently does not go before the people for attlication. Section 7 contains the congressional amendment to our constitution cone and the second sec

The Utah Mines.

We were favored yesterday, with a call from Dr. O. H. Congar, an eminent geologist and assayer, from Utah, who is so route for New York City, where he is about to open an assay office and agency for the Utah Mining Association. The Doctor speaks in glowing terms of the rich minsual wealth of the great improspected country lying between Great sait Lake and Lake Utah, a distance of twenty-seven miles. Gold, silver, copper and lead, promise abturdant returns, and valuable velus of sine, nickel, sulphur, plumbago and carbonate and nitrate of sods, have been found. These mines are as yet modeveloped to any bonate and mines are as yet mideveloped to any extent, and it is Gen. Connor's plan to open them and settle up the country, not along for ongaly understands his duties, and it is safe to say that the Government is according his efforts, in inducing the emigration of a sub-stantial and industrious class of population, as one of the most potent influences to check the growth of Mormonism, and restore that rich country to civilization and a proper re-gardior the amentics of life. Few induce-ments can be found so lemything as these mines, which are comparatively yet unwork-ed, and promise a rich harvest to the pio-neers.

It will be executed partly from a portrait by a French artist, exhibited at the last exhibition of the Fine Arts in Paris, not pasinted for Mr. Dayton himself, but by the desire of the artist; and now, by a singular istality, serving as a last memerate to those he has left behind. The painting has been purchased by a cortain number of American gentlemen in Faris and presented by them to Mrs. Dayton, as a testimony of Having facted forty-eight hours, it became necessary to make our first efforts to procure assembling to eat. The white people were our enumes and the negro had not been tried, but the experiences of others and the crawing of our apputites gave as courage, and we made the effort. It was suncessful, the negro without saking any questions immediately made the effort. It was annecessful, the negro-without naking any questions immediately brought a large loaf of corn bread which we soon atc. At his request we waited until more could be baked, and nest cooked, and we were bountifully fed. The negro thin guided us to the man road, a distance of two miles, and gave us directions where to stop-next morang. Dr. ang this night the rain fell in torrests, and with the cold we were in a pitiable condition. At the break of day we halted a negro yet in his bed, who directed us to an old barn, where he thought it safe to remain.

where they were me, by Chief Young.

M'DOWALD DISCOVERED.

For many reasons Mr. Foung deemed it important to have an interview with McDomald the rebel leader. If was say casy to determine upon an interview, was not so easy to bring it shout. To go at once to Teronto, where he was known, would certainly frustrate the attempt, as it was not at all probable that a man in McDomald's position would roluntarily consent to an interview with the Chief of the New York defective police. Mr. Young consequently matured a place to draw him away from Teronto, and by a very skill-ful piece of diplomacy induced him to come as far as Cliffon. It would be manifestly improper to expose the agencies he employed in bringing it about, but suffice it to say McDomald expected to meet altogether a different person from Mr. Young: and, whether Mr. Young consequently the same parpose as the friend he wanted to meet, was a question "not put;" but of one thing he focis quite certain, he did not enter into any plot for a raid, nelluct did legive him "such intermation as would cushed him townske a strike at the Yankees with bomparative security, and with almost a certainty of success." The preliminary correspondence might have indicated such a purpose, but the facts would not bear it out, as McDomalt on doubtean testify. No, the rebel agent had been fairly caught, and he accepted his position with a much grace as circumstances would permit. Mr. Young tells the reporter that he royers what transpired at the interview; but if a trip of two miles on Roof, at one o'clock at night, over the Suspension Bridge, through a driving snow storm, with the thermomenter at zeg, and the snow kneedeep, would have any offect in making a person remember what the article.

By the kindness of SLAVES.

By the kindness of the negroes we were provided with fire to dry our clothes, and a good supper, and my fit-nd received a hat directly from the head of a veteran Artican. From this place we were guided and directed, secreted and field by the sizes for about gray nifes—traveling in the night, and hiding in the woods or in baras during the day.
